The question was placed before the Committee at this day's meeting. The Committee is of the opinion that "The Survey Department may be placed under the direct charge of a Technical Officer who may be of the grade of the old Deputy Superintendent of Survey, the general administraand supervisory control being vested in the Revenue Commissioner. For various reasons, it is desirable that Muzrai administration should continue to be under the Revenue Commissioner unless experience shows that some relief is required for

The considerations now set forth by the Rec Comm and by the Retr. Committee were before Govt where it was emphatically decided to assign the duties of Survey Supt to the Rec Comm and those of Muzrai Comm to the Excess Comm.

The three drafts hereunto put up will issue if approved. Kind reference is made to the endorsements in Draft I.

The appointment of Mr. Srinivasa Iyengar as Secy to Govt will necessitate some changes in the case of Dy Comm. This point will be examined and put in notes separately.

Immediate. & Coupl

Dear Mr. Rajagopalachari,

I am desired to inform you that the Government have under consideration the question of abolishing the separate post of Superintendent of Survey and assigning his functions to the Revenue Commissioner. At the same time the Revenue Commissioner is to be relieved of the duties of the Muzrai Commissioner, which will be transferred to the Excise Commissioner.

I am to request the favour of your suggestions on this proposal.

The reference may kindly be treated as urgent.

D.O.No. C.C. 1/31-32.

Dear Sir,

R With reference to your D.O. letter No.4969 dated 27th June 1931, marked immediate and confidential, requesting me to submit my suggestions on the question of abolishing the separate post of the Survey Superintendent, ^{and} transferring the Muzrai work to the Excise Commissioner, I beg to state as follows.-

I have carefully considered the proposal which involves a large question of policy, and though I feel that no fundamental difficulties stand in its way, there are certain serious practical considerations which have to be given due weight before the matter is finally decided. I would confine myself to the more important of such considerations and deal with them in broad outline only 2 Firstly, as regards placing the Survey Department under the Revenue Commissioner, I take it that it will not be more in quantity or intricacy than the Muzrai. But, there is a certain amount of technical work and supervision for which the Revenue Commissioner would require the assistance of a fairly experienced Survey Officer of the status of a Deputy Superintendent or a Senior Assistant Commissioner. The two offices being separate and in different buildings and the Revenue Commissioner being a touring officer, this is necessary both for keeping the office in trim and for attending to the technical portion of the work. Besides this, there is another important consideration. The Resettlement operations are, I believe, due to begin in a couple of years. Till now, the fixing of the settlement rates on the land was being done by the Survey Department and their proposals were scrutinised from the general point of view -- which is equivalent to the ryots point of view -- by the Revenue Department. There was thus a healthy check and countercheck as regards the fixing of the assessment. It is likely that the question of assessment on land will become an important controversial question, and any measure likely to weake this healthy check will not perhaps be popular.

Secondly, as regards the transfer of the Muzrai away from the control of the Revenue Commissioner, I am afraid that such a step will not be conducive to efficiency of work in the Muzrai Department. The Muzrai work was transferred to the Revenue Commissioner some years ago mainly because he could control the work better. As a matter of fact, most of the regular Muzrai work is done in the Taluks by the Amildar; and the Revenue Commissioner can more effectively supervise this work as the Amildars are directly under his control. I may also mention that the Muzrai Department, unlike the Excise, Income-tax or Registration, has no separate staff of its own, but has to get its work done by the Taluk agency.

These considerations would perhaps lead to the prima facie conclusion that it would ~~perhaps~~ be better to let things continue as at present. If, however, retrenchment is a paramount consideration, the question has to be settled by Government from that point of view. I would only add that I am prepared to look after Muzrai work also in addition to Survey for the present. If experience shows it is not feasible, then the Muzrai ^{work} may be transferred.

Yours sincerely,

Apuraj ag onal
